15 EVENTS IN LJUBLJANA

University of Ljubljana

The University of Ljubljana was founded after the end of the First World War and the break-up of the Austro-Hungarian Empire, on 23 July 1919, with the adoption of the University Act of the Kingdom of Serbs, Croats and Slovenians. At the time of its founding the university had just five faculties: theology, law, arts, engineering and medicine (the last of these was incomplete, since it only offered two years of preliminary study). Lectures began at the newly founded university in the 1919/20 academic year, in the premises of what until then had been the Carniolan Provincial Assembly, a magnificent building in the centre of Ljubljana. Teaching at the university was initially entrusted to 18 professors, the majority of them from foreign universities. A total of 942 students – including just 28 women – enrolled in the various courses offered by the university. The university's first rector was the world-renowned mathematician Josip Plemelj .

The liberation in 1945 gave a new impetus to the University of Ljubljana. A number of new faculties were founded in the years that followed.

Today the University of Ljubljana has 26 member institutions (23 faculties and 3 art academies) employing 4,300 full-time and part-time university teaching staff, and the number of enrolled students is around 50,000.

About Faculty of Arts

Seminars of Humanities and Social Sciences separated from the Seminars of Natural Sciences and Mathematics physically in 1949 and then formally in 1957.

Allocated a separate building in 1961, the Faculty of Arts is today the largest university faculty in Slovenia.

Since the establishment the number of students and academic staff has grown consistently and rapidly. In the academic year 1919/20 the number of students was 245, today the total number of students is almost 8,000. Also, the number of academic and teaching staff has increased to around 399. Together with the non-teaching staff and external collaborators the total number is approximately 700.

In the beginning, the Faculty of Arts consisted of natural sciences and humanities, which included seven disciplines: Philosophy, Pedagogy, History, Geography, Art History, Slavonic Studies, Romance Studies, Germanic Studies, Classical Philology, and Comparative Linguistics.

About Metelkova

Until 1991, the army barracks of the former Yugoslav army were located in Metelkova Street in the city of Ljubljana, Slovenia.

However, after the Yugoslav army had been obliged to leave Slovenia in 1991, the City Council of Ljubljana was asked to let the abandoned military complex to the city's various independent art and culture organisations.

An initiative to convert military barracks along Metelkova street into a multicultural centre sprung up and joined over 200 individuals and groups into a Network for Metelkova. While officially granting the public request, the City Council secretly planned to tear down the barracks and put a commercial business center in their place. Therefore, approx. 150 self-organised individuals, the city's activists, intellectuals and artists occupied the northern Section of Metelkova barracks. A week after that, the City Council cut Metelkova's water and electricity in an attempt to prevent the artists' cultural programs and to force the activists to leave the squat. The new challenges only served to bolster the strength of the community, however, Metelkova began to thrive more than ever before as a centre of cultural, political and artistic activity.

With a change of governmental authority in Ljubljana in 1994, the squatters and city officials managed to mend fences and all court actions against the illegal occupation of the former military barracks were dropped.

The Metelkova Development Plan was put into action with the citizens of Metelkova designing their own residential environment on their own artistic, imaginative terms. In April 1997 dialogue with the Municipality came to a halt again over announced demolition of some of the most damaged buildings in the Northern section of Metelkova - namely, Hangar, Hlev, Garaže, Zapori. Once again people of Metelkova managed to halt this plan. Later on, the Municipality - in agreement with people of Metelkova - proceeded with demolishing the heavily-damaged Šola building. A small part of the city budget for 1997 was assigned for reconstruction of Pešci building, which included electricity installations, water supply and replacement of heavily damaged interiors. The squatters had to leave and after reconstruction was finished, in July 1997, the empty places were given to artists already active at Metelkova before. Constantly threatened by the lure of commercial development, neo-conservative politicians and internal problems within the 'autonomous zone,' Metelkova has endured simply through the creativity, imagination, energy and determination of the many individuals who have fought to maintain the autonomy and diversity of community, often through physical, yet non-violent, resistance.

ACCESS WITH FUNICULAR RAILWAY

The lower funicular station is located in Krek Square opposite the Ljubljana Central Market. The railway tracks were built just outside the medieval walls, so as not to interfere with the layout of the former medieval city.

Construction of the railway revealed the ruins of the medieval defensive wall, which were strengthened and displayed along the entire length of the tracks. Similarly, at the lower station, the remains of a defensive moat can be observed along the foot of the defensive walls, on which houses were subsequently built.

PUBLIC TRANSPORT

TRANSPORT

See Ljubljana with city bus – How to buy Urbana card?

Urban and suburban bus services operated by the LPP company

Those wishing to travel on Ljubljana city buses, operated by the Ljubljanski potniški promet (LPP) public utility company, should purchase the Urbana public transport card. The Urbana card is available from LPP ticket offices, tourist information centres and most of the city's newspaper kiosks, news-stands and post offices.

The card is priced at €2.00 and can store up to €50.00 of credit to be spent on city bus fares.

The Urbana card can be topped up with cash at all the above mentioned sales outlets and the green Urbanomat ticket machines located across the city, mostly next to bus stops. The ticket machines accept both cash and credit and debit cards.

Visitors to Ljubljana who purchase their Urbana card from a Tourist Information Centre and keep the receipt can return the card to the place of purchase when they no longer need it and claim a €2.00 refund.

A single journey fare is €1.20. It covers an up to 90-minute journey regardless of the number of buses needed to be changed to reach the destination.

Two versions of the Urbana card are available: the yellow top-up card and the green monthly card. The top-up card, available from all the above mentioned sales outlets, is not issued in the cardholder's name so no identity document is required to obtain it. A single Urbana card can be used to pay for several people's fare. Such payments must be made to the driver, who selects the required number of fares on a special terminal.
